This is what the best of data journalism looks like

After a year of hard work, collecting and sifting through hundreds of data projects from around the world, the news is finally out. The thirteen winners (and one honourable mention) of the Data Journalism Awards 2018 competition were announced on 31 May in Lisbon. Together they are the best of what the world of data journalism had to offer in the past year. They also teach us a lot about the state of data journalism.
